Gov McCreary has not so far commuted the death sentence of Tom Slaughter, the murderer of Lee Jenkins, in this county, and it is to be hoped he will not. Slaughter is unquestionably guilty of the crime
for which he has been twice convicted. He was a murderous negro to begin with and there is no reason why his worthless life should be spared. The good citizens of South Christian exercised commendable restraint believing that the law was adequate to punish a murderer who might have been mobbed in a less lawful community. Only his execution will satisfy public sentiment.
A lesser punishment will encourage mob law.

The War Department has com-

Mexico in the event that intervention is forced upon the United States. If Congress decides that intervention is necessary, which may happen if con-

order issued to United States regulars into Mexican territory will be accompanied by a call upon the various States to get their militia into the field.

Lining Up With Their Favorites.

Well, the contest department of the Kentuckian is about the busiest place in Hopkinsville, at this time.
The contest manager is kept busy explaining the details of the contest,
issuing votes and receiving subscription. Every day is a bigger, busier day. Today is likely to be the most interesting day since the contest
started, as many of the candidates from the county districts will call at the office for particulars and subscription blanks, and the city contestants are striving to secure subscriptions as early as possible.

Contestants should read every word that is published in every issue of the Kentuckian, as many announcements are made from time to time that are of importance to all who are interested in the contest.

If the Kentuckian is not coming to your house send in your subscription first so that you will not miss any contest news from now until the close of the contest. See all your friends and get their promise to assist you. A little effort will be rewarded by big results, and the prizes to be awarded are worthy of your best effort. This may be the opportunity of a life time to secure

such a costly prize for so little effort. The time is short and the opportunity great.

Several additional nominations appear in this issue, and others are likely to come in at any time. It is not too late to enter. Plenty of time to start and win. Don't wait to be nominated if you want to share in the distribution of the many fine prizes, send in your name in person or by telephone and start today.

NEW IDEAS
FOR FAIRSPresident Cowherd Steps to
The Front With
New Plans.

CORN AND TOBACCO SHOWS

Association of Fair Companies Would Contribute to General Success.

The fitness of S. L. Cowherd for the responsible position of President of the Pennyroyal Fair has never been questioned. No better selection could have been made.

Already he comes forward with suggestions that cannot be allowed to pass by. They are innovations which cannot fail to be productive of great results if adopted and carried out by the fair associations of this section.

In the first place he announces that all schools in the county and city will be given space in the floral hall for their exhibits. Each school is to have a booth, which will be under the control of a representative of the school and the decorations and exhibits can be arranged as the taste of the children may dictate. The recent exhibits of articles at Louisville by the children of the county public schools in different parts of the county are sufficient evidence that the schools will do their part in making the opening of the fair a most decided success.

Mr. Cowherd favors an association of fairs throughout the district that will be of great advantage to every fair going into the association. The wisdom of such action is so clear that those unfamiliar with the details of arranging for exhibits cannot fail to see it at first glance. This second proposition is calculated to make it possible for all fairs to have many first-class attractions, that,
under the old plan of arranging programs, was impossible. Under the proposed new arrangements fixing dates would be the first thing to be agreed upon by the fair companies that go into the association. Then there would be no trouble as to moving star attractions from one city to another, the different members thus being able to have attractions they could not otherwise secure. This would undoubtedly to a great extent guarantee the success of all companies belonging to the association of fairs.

By making provision for exhibiting at the county fair this year the products of the boys' corn clubs, tobacco clubs, or anything that young girls of the county might turn their attention to, it is easy to see to what extent the children will contribute to the success of the first old-time county fair we have had for a most quarter of a century. The success of the first insures the continued
prosperity of those that follow.

Nearly $19,000,000 was spent in the antituberculosis campaign in the United States during the year 1912, according to the fourth annual statistical statement of expenditures in this movement just issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. These annual statements are based largely on reports received from anti-tuberculosis agencies throughout the country. The figures are estimated where actual reports are not available.

The expenditures during the year for sanatorium and hospital construction and treatment make the largest single item in the total, amounting to nearly $16,800,000. This is an increase of nearly $5,000,000 over the same group of expenditures for the year 1911. The anti-tuberculosis associations and committees spent over $785,000, while dispensaries and tuberculosis clinics spent over $500,000. More than $115,000 was spent for the maintenance and establishment of open-air schools and fresh air classes, which is more than double the amount spent for this purpose in 1911. Official, state and municipal expenditures outside of the maintenance of institutions, which are included in the other totals, amounted to $280,000. In addition to these figures, about $500,000 was spent by hospitals for insane and penal institutions in caring for their tuberculous inmates.

Provision is to be made by the American Institute of Architects for a meeting hall in connection with its property, the historic Octagon House, at the northeast corner of Eighteenth street and New York avenue. A year ago two houses adjoining the property on the north were purchased, thus providing an additional frontage on Eighteenth street by fifty feet. Glenn Brown and Bedford Brown were authorized to make preliminary studies of a plan for the proposed enlargement. At first it was proposed to preserve the old stables, which, following the pattern of earlier days, are of generous proportions, but it was found that they could not be used as offices or as a lobby to the meeting hall.

In order to attain the objects of the improvement—namely, offices, meeting hall, exhibition hall and banquet hall—the plan which the architects regard as the best is a simple treatment reproducing the proportions of the two upper stories of the Octagon with a recess in the angle, making it a part of the garden where statues and memorial tablets may be placed.

Closed colonnades will connect the new building with the Octagon, which is designed to be used for exhibition purposes and will be shown only on the garden side. Under the meeting room will be a banquet hall, with reception, hat and cloak rooms.

A Splendid Tonic.

Cora, Ky.—Mrs. Iva Moore of this place says: "I was so weak, I could hardly walk. I tried Cardui, and was greatly relieved. It is a splendid tonic. I have recommended Cardui to many friends, who tried it with good results." Testimony like this comes unsolicited, from thousands of earnest women, who have been benefited by the timely use of that successful tonic medicine, Cardui. Purely vegetable, mild, but reliable, Cardui well merits its high place in the esteem of those who have tried it. It relieves women's pains, and strengthens weak women. It is certainly worth a trial. Your druggist sells Cardui.

ANIMALS USED TO TEST DRUGS.

Use is made by chemical manufacturers of various animals, such as chickens, dogs, cats and frogs, to test the efficacy of drugs. Ergotine, for instance, is tested on chickens in an extremely simple way. Should it fail to turn a chicken's comb black it is at once known by the experimenter that the drug is worthless. Dogs are employed to test hashish. This is manufactured from female buds of hemp, the male buds having no particular medicinal value. Hashish administered to dogs induces a peculiar pathological condition, and, if the drug is correctly prepared, which is seen in no other animal save man himself. Digitalis, the heart stimulant, is best tested on frogs. Injecting a drop of the drug into the stomach of the frog, the chemist, by means of the kymograph, or heart recording machine, studies the changes of the frog's heart action, thus obtaining accurate knowledge as to the effect of that particular kind of digitalis.

RECORD ATTENDANCE
LAYMEN'S CONVENTION

MEETING IN MEMPHIS WILL MARK
AN EPOCH IN HISTORY OF SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

MANY DISTINGUISHED MEN

Convention Will be Addressed by Prominent Men From Almost Every State in the Union.

Memphis, Tenn., February 7.—(Special).—The Laymen's Missionary Movement was organized in 1907, and it has contributed more than any other force in the United States to bring our churches to a better understanding among themselves and likewise a clearer conception of the individual task of each denomination. This is one of the most helpful signs in our church life today and we confidently believe that the movement is going to help the churches not only in defining the individual task of each, but to arouse the laymen to assume their obligations and to meet them.

The convention that is being planned for this city February 18-20 bids fair to be one of the most significant meetings ever held in the South. It is the first time laymen have ever met in a great convention to consider the home problems alone and for this reason the greatest possible interest is centering in this convention, and it is expected to mark an epoch in the history of the Southern Presbyterian church.

List of Speakers.
Among the prominent speakers that have already accepted the invitation to speak at this convention may be mentioned as follows:

Mr. J. Campbell White, General Secretary of the Laymen's Movement, who by his stirring appeal is leading men to a recognition of their place in the work of the church.

Rev. J. S. Lyons, D. D., of the First church, Louisville, Ky., the pastor who has most successfully led the men of his congregation into active service as a Yoke-Fellows' Band.

Mr. W. C. Smith, Richmond, Va., familiarly known as "The Mississippi Elder," now editor of "Onward," the latest young people's paper in the South.

Mr. William T. Ellis, the well known newspaper correspondent, who presents world problems from the viewpoint of a Christian statesman.

Mr. J. P. McCallie, Chairman of the great church-wide campaign on Evangelism and Stewardship, which is uniting the whole church in a determined effort to meet its responsibility.

Rev. Juan Ortiz Gonzales, of Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va., the converted monk who is now preparing for the Protestant ministry.

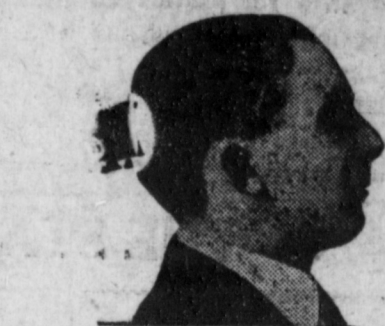

Mr. Harry Wade Hicks, General Secretary of the Missionary Education Movement, this organization which is furnishing the fuel to keep the great missionary fires burning in the churches.

Rev. T. S. Clyde, D. D., President of Austin College, Sherman, Texas, will sound "The Call of the West" as one who has himself answered the call with the best years of his life.

Rev. Homer McMillan, D. D., Secretary of the Assembly's Home Missions, will sum up the home missions problems confronting our church and challenge our men to meet them.

Mr. W. E. Doughty, the Educational Secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement and editor of "Men and Women," will bring a soul-stirring message from his years of service among and for men.

Other Speakers and Participants.
Rev. A. B. Curry, D. D., Memphis, Tenn.; Rev. J. E. Booker, Farmville, Va.; Rev. A. L. Phillips, D. D., Richmond, Va.; Rev. W. R. Dobyns, D. D., St. Joseph, Mo.; Rev. Reuben L. Breed, New York; Mr. W. F. Stephenson, Cheraw, S. C.; Mr. E. C. Branson, Athens, Ga.; Stewart R. Roberts, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.; Rev. John Little, Louisville, Ky.; Rev. J. W. Skinner, Kingsville, Tex.; Rev. E. Hotchkiss, Durant, Okla.; Mr. Marlon M. Jackson, Atlanta, Ga.; Rev. W. E. Hudson, Winchester, Ky.; Rev. J. Lynn Bachman, D. D., Sweetwater, Tenn.; Mr. Joseph E. McAfee, New York; Rev. J. Layton Mauze, St. Louis, Mo.; Rev. W. M. Anderson, D. D., Dallas, Texas; Mr. C. T. Paxton, Jacksonville, Fla.; Mr. A. D. Mason, Memphis, Tenn.; Rev. A. A. McGee, D. D., Charlotte, N. C.; Rev. J. G. Snedecor, D. D., Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Rev. Thornton Whaling, D. D., Columbia, S. C.; Mr. J. N. Montgomery, Birmingham, Ala.; Rev. R. O. Flynn, D. D., Atlanta, Ga.; Rev. A. P. Gregory, Cornerville, Tenn.; Rev. R. L. Walkup, Brookhaven, Miss.; Rev. H. N. Falco, Chester, Pa.; Union Seminary Quartet, Richmond, Va.

WHO ARE EXPECTED TO ATTEND

Pastors.

He is the real leader of the people. What he lacks they cannot supply. If he fails in leadership, his church fails in service. If there are a few pastors who do not need the help of a great convention like this there are many more who need it in many ways. The leader must keep ahead of those led.

Elders.

It is theirs to plan for the enlargement of the church. If they are not wide-awake, no plans will be forthcoming. Here is where the busy man can get what he must have if he is to be a successful leader.

Deacons.

This is the day of opportunity for the deacon. The church has never offered him so large a field of service as it does today. This convention will show him how to enter upon his larger work.

Members' Beneficent Committee.
Few members of beneficent committees are acquainted with the possibilities of their work, and the many are falling because of this ignorance. Here is a chance for them to learn and to get in touch with what others are actually doing and doing successfully.

Home Mission Workers.
The home mission worker can go to this great meeting with the assurance he will return to his work equipped with new facts, new methods, new inspirations and a refreshed and strengthened faith.

Members' Presbyterian Committee Home Missions.

The Presbyterians are more and more turning over to their home mission committees the care of the home mission enterprises. If these committees lack initiative, the work cannot grow.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

WOMAN SICK FOURTEEN YEARS

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SADIE WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

FACTS ABOUT FLY

More Than Forty Thousand Species of Pest Known.

Elite of Insect World, Wonderful in Structure and Metamorphosis—Breaths Through Holes in Their Sides—Also Have Great Strength.

It has been said that there are as many flies as there are fruits. This is not literally true; nevertheless, there are some 40,000 known species, of which 3,000 to 4,000 inhabit the British Isles, says English Mathematician. The diptera, as the name implies, are two-winged insects; but the rudiments of a second pair still remain in the form of diminutive drum-shaped appendages, known as the balancers. Their use is not definitely known, but experiment shows that, when damaged or destroyed, the flight of the insect is seriously impaired, becoming an ascending spiral, but otherwise directionless. In the house fly there are complicated glandlike organs at the base of the balancers, also of unknown function. A suggestive form of fly which affects the coats of red deer when securely lodged thereon casts or bites off its wings; hence, if red deer were as numerous as man a gradual diminution in the use of wings would arise and ultimate disappearance of these organs might ensue. Some familiar process probably marks the evolution of the common flea, which is a wingless type of dipteran. Flies are the elite of the insect world, both as regards structure and metamorphosis. This latter is more complete than in any other insect, because during pupation the whole of the organs of the larval stages are dissolved into a creamy fluid (essentially a return to the egg stage), and from this arise the very different organs of the imago or perfect insect.

The eggs are laid in organic refuse, and in this land of plenty the young grubs eat vigorously, grow quickly, form a hard case with loose top segment which is finally pushed off to allow of the exit of the perfect insect. As this emerges from the pupa so it remains during life. It never increases in size and the small flies of the spring are different species to the larger ones of a latter season. Like all insects, flies are divided into three segments—head, thorax and abdomen, with their appendages. They breathe through holes in their sides (spiracles), which are the entrances to a complete system of tubes, a valve at the end of each opening preventing the expulsion of air, which can thus travel in one direction only.

The air is pumped through these tubes by the aid of an ingenious pumping device situated at the opening to the tubes, the walls of which are surrounded by rings of a horny substance, to prevent them from collapsing, and by blood vessels, through which the air is forced, finally leaving the body through the skin. This perfect aeration of the blood explains the strength of flies, they being able to support sixty or seventy times their own weight. Spiracles are associated with the buzzing noise commonly thought to be generated by the motion of the wings. If the wings are removed the sounds are produced with equal loudness. The tongue, or proboscis, is furnished with fine tubes, which exude a saliva, thus dissolving sugary substances, which, if too large, can be broken up by small teeth, thus facilitating the formation of a slurr.

Their eyes are each compounded of 2,000 six-sided facets, each at the summit of a tube, at the base of which is connected a nerve fiber. There are three smaller eyes forming a triangle above and below these with the apex toward the front of the head. Their use is unknown. If varnished flight is not affected; but if the compound eyes are varnished the power to direct flight is seriously deranged. Experiments show that flies are more responsive to air currents (denoting the approach of danger) than to light, and depend more upon this than upon vision. In proof of this, if a wasp is placed in a glass tumbler, the bottom of which is turned to the light and the open end placed in shadow, the creature will exhaust itself in its effort to get out at the closed end, and remain indifferent to the easy exit at the other. This is not so with the house fly. If the open end of the glass be covered efforts will be directed more or less equally all over the glass; and, if a movement of the cover is made sufficient to leave space for the exit, the fly is immediately sensible of the draft through the space, and makes a hurried departure. Flies are more easily caught by slow movements—a fact known to some of its insect preys, who align death to secure the near approach of an intended victim.

The nose, or organ of smell, is centered in two feathered antennae, each of which is covered with several thousand pits, each associated with a nerve fiber. The beautiful mechanism of the organs of locomotion were next surveyed, and the fly's ability to walk upside down and up smooth glass was attributed to the presence of a gummy secretion on two pads at the base of each foot. Consequently, any surface—such as the sides of a milk bowl—covered with a greasy material offered no foothold.

The hairs of their bodies point downward, and thus the leg and wing rubbing which one sees continuously of particles of dust and parasites.

PARK WORK STARTED

Plans For Virginia Park Are Adopted and Contracts Let.

IMPROVEMENTS TO BE PUSHED

Olmsted Bros., Brookline, Mass., Architects Who Made the Ground Plans.

The Park Committee of the City Council has accepted with but slight changes the landscape plans prepared by Olmsted Bros. of Brookline, Mass., for Virginia Park, and work has already begun. The present entrances to the Park will be closed and the two main entrances will be in the northwest and southeast corners. The only building will be a combined rest house and pavilion on the eastern edge about midway of the park. All of the present walks except the one in the grape arbor are now being torn up. There will be walks around the edges of the Park winding up to the Pavilion, leaving a large open court next to Ninth street. The grape arbor will be turned into a pergola, the vines being retained and the pergola extending to Ninth street, where there will be another entrance. In the southeast corner, between the pergola and the service driveway will be an enclosed play ground for small children. The pavilion will be 32 feet square, the base being built of the cut stone wall on Ninth street, which will be torn down. The upper will be a pavilion, somewhat smaller, the concrete floor of the pavilion being the roof of the rooms underneath. A ladies' rest room, a caretaker's room and toilet rooms will be in the basement, which will be above ground.

M. E. Boales has been put in charge of the work of taking up the old pavements.

A landscape architect from Wagner Conservatories, Sidney, O., will be here next week to discuss the foliage for both parks.

Waller & Brodie are working on the plans for the pavilion and pergola.

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

The relative percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:

Bread made with
Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:

100 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with
phosphate powder:

68 1/4 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with
alum powder:

67 3/4 Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

TWO NEW SUITS

Filed In Circuit Court For Damages.

As the time for closing the docket for the coming session of Circuit Court approached there was the usual activity in filing suits.

G. T. Powell, a passenger who was hurt in the I. C. wreck at Green's Crossing, and the only one who has so far brought suit, claims damages in the sum of $2,900 and $100 for doctors' bill. He alleges that six of his ribs were broken and one of them is still pissing on his lung.

J. R. Hawkins, the colored grocer, has sued the Christian Todd Telephone Co. for $500 damages, alleging that one of the defendants' wagons ran over him at the corner of Ninth and Campbell streets, and that the accident was due to negligence on the part of the driver.

Dr. E. N. Fruit yesterday filed a $15,000 damage suit against the I. C. Railroad Co. for injuries sustained in the Green's Crossing wreck. His nose was broken and other severe injuries sustained about the head and neck.

George Carroll, by his next friend, sues for $2,000 damages and $25 for medical services, for alleged injuries growing out of the same wreck.

Lackey Steele sues for 2500 for alleged injuries also for $400 for special damages from the same wreck.

City Sued.

Palmer Graves has sued the city of Hopkinsville for $2500 damages alleging that the city failed to build an embankment on its lot adjoining his property in a substantial manner and that his lime kiln machinery was damaged by high water and that his business was interfered with. He also alleges a breach of contract.

Prof. M. L. Girton, principal of the Hopkinsville High School received a telegram informing him of the death of his mother in Iowa. No particulars were given in the message.

Terrell's Address.

Among the speakers at the Good Roads Convention to be held at Hopkinsville February 19 and 20 is Mr. R. C. Terrell, the Commissioner of Public Roads, who will speak on "Road Law and Its Application to Conditions in Kentucky."

Mr. Terrell's address should prove not the least interesting feature of the programme. The road law in Kentucky is not extensive. There is, we believe, a law passed at the 1912 session of the General Assembly giving counties the right to issue bonds for the building of roads. There is a second law, passed also by the General Assembly of 1912, under which was created a Commission of Public Roads to advise with such counties as desire to build good roads and to supervise in a general way the work of construction. The estimated annual cost of maintenance for this commission is $25,000. Mr. Terrell, who is a brother of the Speaker of the General Assembly of 1912, has the distinction of being the first head of the good roads bureau.

So much for good roads legislation in Kentucky, which forms part of the subject on which Mr. Terrell is to speak. "Its application to conditions in Kentucky" may prove a more difficult phase of the topic.

Of the 120 counties in Kentucky more than eighty are pauper counties. In sixty-five of them there is not a mile of publicly built road and naturally no provision for maintenance.

These are the conditions in Kentucky. The result is that pauper counties are not issuing bonds and the advice and supervision which the Commission of Public Roads stands ready to give is not being asked for by them. The self-sustaining counties have, as a rule, a fairly good system of roads.

If Mr. Terrell can explain how the legislation of 1912, which is the only legislation enacted since the adoption of 1909, applies or can apply to Kentucky's need of good roads, he will have done something to earn the liberal salary which a financially embarrassed State now pays him.—Louisville Times.

CHURCH BURNS

Palestine Baptist Edifice, West
of Crofton, Destroyed By Fire.

Seats, Organ and Lamps Were Saved—Loss Amounts to About $600.

Palestine Baptist church, five miles west of Crofton, was totally destroyed by fire last Saturday afternoon. Fire was started in the building about 5 o'clock, in order to warm it up, preparatory to holding services Saturday night and the structure caught from a defective flue. But little could be done to check the flames and the edifice was soon reduced to ashes. The seats, organ and lamps were saved. The loss is about $600, with no insurance.

"Bring On Your Hay!"

"This is a LOUDEN CARRIER and a LOUDEN BALANCE GRAPPLE FORK, and you can't come too hard or too fast for 'em."

IT'S mighty comforting to know that when you drive up with a load of hay you've got a carrier you can depend on and a fork that will handle any kind of hay you put it into—clover, timothy, wild upland, alfalfa or straw. It's all the same.

The Loudon is the simplest, strongest and most compactly built Hay Carrier ever designed. It has an action so positive it simply can't go wrong. It's built to stand three times the strain expected of it. The material in it is the best that can be bought.

The Loudon Balance Grapple Fork is the best fork in the market for all classes of hay. Through its "arched support" it has perfect balance, and can be opened or closed with just a touch. We want a chance to show you this Carrier and Fork. They are honest tools and we have confidence in them.

You'll have confidence, too, when you see them.

FOUND HIS IDEAL

What Happened When Frances Kennedy Went Coasting With the Little Folks.

By M. DIBBELL.

"Frances Kennedy, what prank are you up to now?"

"Why, Aunt Flossie, don't you remember my telling you this morning that Elmer Bergen was going to take his sister and me tobogganing to-night? You don't think I would wear my hair up so it would all come down the minute we started to slide, did you?" The heavy braid fell below her waist and a fluffy wool cap was pulled well down over her ears. Her dress reached her shoe tops, thus making a charming school girl of the mature young woman.

Her aunt regarded her quizzically. "What a child you are, Frances; I don't believe you ever will grow up. The idea of a college graduate going to slide down a country hill with a small boy and his sister."

"That is just where the fun comes in—I am tired of the conventional way of doing things. Good bye—I am certain to have a jolly time." She threw her aunt a kiss and danced from the room singing "Jingle Bells" at the top of her voice.

"Bless the youngster, I only hope she keeps the child spirit all her life," thought Aunt Flossie as she watched her niece join Elmer and his sister at the gate and then pass from sight down the moonlit road.

It did not take the trio long to reach the steep hill down which they were to slide, and when the girls were safely tucked in front of him Elmer said warningly before starting the toboggan: "You must be prepared for a surprise at the foot of the hill, Frances—I shan't tell you what it is." Then they were off, going faster and faster over the crusted snow. Frances enjoyed the slide immensely, until the "surprise" came. This proved to be the shooting out into the air of the toboggan over the top of a high stone wall, and alighting of the same, in the field several feet lower down with such a hearty thud that the breath was about knocked out of all three passengers.

Elmer did not wait for the vengeance he knew awaited him, but as soon as he could regain his breath started away at a run, calling back with a shout of laughter, "How did you like my surprise, Frances—wasn't it fine?"

Frances scrambled to her feet and started in hot pursuit, her long braid streaming behind. "Just wait till I catch you, you little wretch, and see how you like having your ears well boxed," she threatened breathlessly.

Etta Bergen remained in possession of the toboggan, laughing in huge delight at the exciting chase, until a warning shout sounded at the stone wall. She sprang aside just as another toboggan plumped down beside her brother's.

"Oh, Roy," she cried, as she recognized the new comer. "You almost landed on top of me. I was too excited to think of moving. It is such fun." In few words she explained the cause of the chase going on before them.

Big Roy Singleton watched Frances with admiration. "My, but she's a fine runner," he said shortly. "Elmer has met his match this time—look at the young scamp doubling back here for protection."

"Save me, Roy," gasped Elmer, as he neared them. "Don't let me be scalped before your face and eyes," and he darted behind his friend to drop on the snow, after his run.

Frances was too taken with her pursuit to notice anything but her proposed victim, and as she was almost within reaching distance when he swerved around Roy, she ran headlong into that young man's open arms.

"My, but you are a wonder!" he cried as he held her tight. "I would never have believed that a mite of a girl could give Elmer such a hard run for his life if I hadn't seen it for myself."

Frances struggled to free herself. "I am not a 'mite of a girl,'" she flared out wrathfully, "and how dare you hold me!"

Roy released her instantly, looking decidedly sheepish. His first glance showed him that his escaped captive was not the child for which he had taken her.

"I beg your pardon," he began stumbly.

Frances interrupted with a stamp of her foot. "Ot, bother, I forgot my hair—you are not to blame. Come, Elmer, is there any way out of this horrid field?" She turned her back on Roy and marched toward the wall with Etta and Elmer and the toboggan trailing meekly in her wake.

"We have to go up to the far end to get out," Elmer informed her, and soon the three were climbing up the long hill down which they had come.

It was Elmer who broke a gloom silence. "You aren't mad are you, Frances?" he asked contritely. "You know I only meant it for a joke, and it couldn't hurt you."

"Yes I am angry, Elmer—but not with you. It is I who should have my ears boxed for acting like a goose."

"What rot," was Elmer's answer. "You are the only nice grown-up girl I ever knew. Most of them are so stupid and slow they make me tired."

Frances had to smile at this plain expression of opinion. "I am glad you like me, but who do you suppose that young man will think of a person of my age sliding down hill dressed up like a school girl?" "Pooh," snorted Elmer. "I think you heard what his opinion of you was. Roy was twenty-four last June, but he likes to have a good time same as he ever did—has all the digging he wants at the office and is in for some fun when he can get away."

This was comforting to Frances' wounded self-esteem, but she utterly refused to take another ride down the hill, though Elmer coaxed.

"I have had all the tobogganing I want," she said decidedly. "You and Etta can keep on if you want to, I am not afraid to go home alone."

But they would not listen to this, and the three turned their steps homeward.

"Just wait till I get a chance at Roy," grumbled Elmer to his sister after they parted from Frances. "I'll give him a piece of my mind. If he hadn't butted in at the wrong minute Frances would have stayed out a long time."

The evening following the tobogganing experience, Frances was reading aloud to her aunt when a loud knock sounded at the front door, and she answered the summons to find standing before her big Roy Singleton.

"I called to ask if I might have the pleasure of giving you a ride down the long hill," he said at once. "I am sure Mrs. Frencham will vouch for my reliability." Aunt Flossie on hearing his voice had come forward.

"Why, Roy, you are a sight for sore eyes," she said heartily. "Come right in and let me introduce you to my niece, Frances Kennedy, who is paying me a visit."

"I had the happiness of meeting Miss Kennedy last evening, and now I want to induce her to take another try at tobogganing," explained Roy as he entered.

Aunt Flossie looked surprised, for she had heard nothing of the encounter. Frances had told her that she found coasting uninteresting.

But with Roy on the scene the whole affair was soon made clear to her, and she laughed unrestrainedly at his account of the fleeing Elmer and his valiant pursuer.

"I don't see how you could call such an incident uninteresting," she told Frances. "I thought you had been unusually quiet today, you little humbug."

Roy's pleading was ably seconded by Mrs. Frencham, and the two young people started for the long hill, which was at the opposite side of the village from their former evening's exploit.

Etta and Elmer came rushing up as they reached the summit. "Oh, I say, isn't this fine," cried Elmer at sight of them. "I take it all back, Roy, now you have made up with Frances and got her to come out again."

That evening began a new era for Frances and Roy. It was not many weeks before the straightforward young man said to her, "Ever since I first held you in my arms I have loved you, Frances. I knew when you left me below the stone wall that I had found my ideal."

Frances asked demurely, "Don't you think it was most unwomanly to throw myself at your head, and anything but an ideal action to lose my temper and stamp my foot?"

"What would an ideal be like without a temper?" was Roy's counter question. "I fell head over ears in love with you on the spot—I know perfection when I see it."

Text and Sermon.

"I had a little lesson several weeks ago," remarked the man with the gray mustache, "and it called me in good shape."

"Go ahead," said the stout man.

"I was in the garage where I keep my car and happened to overhear a conversation among the boys. A certain man had been injured while traveling abroad—very badly injured, it was reported—and one of the boys was telling the others about it. 'The story in the paper says he can't get well,' the youngster went on. 'Did you know him, Pete?' And the boy addressed promptly replied, 'Sure, I knew th' old grouch.' Say that hit me pretty hard. Here was a leading citizen dying and all the boy could remember about him was that he was a grouch. Yes, sir, it made me sit up and think hard. And I got in my mind that when I passed out I'd like to be remembered for something different."

He paused.

"That's worth considering," said the other man.

"Good text," said the first man.

"Good sermon," said the other.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Desirable Insect Immigrants.

The Australian ladybird beetle came into California to destroy the white scale in the late 80's, and this was followed by the carriage of the same species of beetle, with equally good results, to Portugal, to Italy, to South Africa, and quite recently to Formosa, in all cases destroying the same scale insect.

Another instance was the importation from Australia of certain parasites of the sugar cane leaf hopper into Hawaii, which is said to have resulted in the reduction of the numbers of the leaf hoppers to a negligible quantity. A gigantic experiment of the same kind is now being carried on in the importation of parasites and natural enemies of the gypsy moth and the brown-tail moth from all parts of Europe and from Japan into the New England states.

A number of species have already been introduced and acclimated, and admirable results are expected from this work.—Exchange.

GOOD ROADS CONVENTION

To Be Held In This City On Next Tuesday And Wednesday.

LOW RATES ON RAILROADS

Experts And Prominent Speakers Are On The Program.

For the purpose of finally improving the road conditions in Christian county, the Hopkinsville Business Men's Association has succeeded in arousing enough interest among the farming community to attend a good roads convention, to be held here Tuesday and next day—that is if the evidences are not deceiving. From indications the convention will be the best attended ever before held here. Farmers are aroused to the fact that no association or lot of experts and speakers can do anything towards securing better roads unless the farmers, the real beneficiaries, become interested and make the start in road building themselves.
And the farmers are more and more realizing that they are the persons to bring about the results so much needed. So it is safe to assume that practical men like the farmers of Christian will not fail to be here on Wednesday and Thursday of next week in large numbers. If they fail to do so there is no reason to hope that such an opportunity to inform themselves will present itself again
for many years.

Mr. Castleberry, the Secretary of the B. M. A., has worked like a Trojan to perfect the arrangements for securing men of reputation as speakers who are thoroughly acquainted with every detail of building, and from practical experience, can inform those interested as to how roads should be built to last. This is the desideratum in road construction.
If the old adage that "anything worth doing at all is worth doing well" be true, there is nothing to which it can be applied with more force than in building roads.

In leaving nothing undone to make the road convention a success Mr.
Castleberry has arranged with the different railroads to carry passengers at reduced rates from all stations in Kentucky and Tennessee and to Evansville and Cincinnati.

The rate will be one and a third fare plus 25c for round trip. The tickets will be sold on the certificate plan, the purchaser of a ticket paying the full fare to this city but taking from the agent who sell it to him a certificate to that effect. When this certificate is validated here by the signature of Secretary Castle-berry, then he will be sold a ticket back to his original starting point for one third of the usual fare plus 25c.

The program so far arranged is
as follows:

M. O. Eldridge, of Washington, expert in the Government Department of Good Roads.

R. C. Terrell, Commissioner of Public Roads in Kentucky, who will speak on "Road Law and its Application to Conditions in the State."

John Garner, of Springfield, Tenn.,
"Bonding Your County for Roads and Securing Efficiency After Letting the Contract."

G. W. Sybert, of Madisonville, Ky., "How to Work Dirt Roads on the Cheapest and Most Efficient Plan."

John C. Duffy, of Hopkinsville,
"Government Aid in Working Roads."

Judge Walter Knight, of Hopkinsville, "The Best Method the Court Should Adopt in Securing Efficiency
from Contractors."

Judge W. T. Fowler, of Hopkinsville, "How the Farmer May Help to Get Better Roads."

Charles E. Barker, of Pembroke,

Ky., "Why the Farmer Should Help
to Improve His Roads."

There will be other features added during the two days convention and the attendance from a distance may probably exceed that of the county. But that should not be. If the B. M. A. and others who have given their time, labor and money to make the convention what it should be, it would certainly be a reflection on own farmers to let others reap the advantages that belong to them.

The circuit court room was first chosen in which the sessions are to be held, but if it should prove to be too small there are other places that are large enough.

Push the Button

Drive up in front of our Grocery Department. You will see a new box post standing on the edge of the pavement with an Electric Push Button. Take your whip handle and press the button and a real live clerk will rush out at once, anxious to take your order, and to save you the trouble of getting out, hitching your horse and entering the store. Try it and see how it works.

This principle, "You Push the Button and we'll do the rest," you will find now obtains in every department of our business.

AMUSEMENTS.

The merry musical play, "Three Twins," will be the offering at Holland's Opera House, Monday, Feb.
24th.

"Three Twins" is an adaptation of that famous farce "Incog," set to the most charming music. Every number is so full of melody, that you will hum it for days after you hear it. Chief among them is the "Yamma Yamma Man" and "Cuddle
Up a Little Closer." Miss Marie Sabbott's rendering of the former number is a delicious bit of grotesque comedy. The company which numbers over 50 people, is headed by Cecil Lyndon, a most refined and finished comedian, who has the gift of being capable to act, sing and dance; a truly rare combination.

Mrs. Glover is the pretty and attractive daughter of Mr. Cave Johnson, of this city, and is well known throughout the county. Her bright cheerful disposition has won for her many friends. Mr. Glover was reared near Wallonia and is a prosperous farmer whose ability is well known and whose personality is much admired.

Their many friends wish for a happy career throughout their
